July 2025

FROM THE EDITORS

Dearly beloved friends, welcome to the July 2025 edition of the Divine Love Newsletter – a newsletter dedicated to the Divine Love community. We are pleased to bring you inspiring articles and member updates from around the world.

Eva Peck shares a touching and heartfelt account of her husband Alex's passing. Amid her grief, she expresses deep gratitude for the many blessings and perfectly timed events that preceded and permeated this difficult time. She speaks of the small miracles that supported both of them along the way and thanks the community for their love and prayers. Eva sees in her life the fulfillment of Psalm 23:6 -- Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life. While we are saddened by Alex's passing, we take solace in knowing he is now lovingly cared for beyond the veil.

Lisa Sims offers a beautiful and adventurous story of her recent trip to Mexico with her friend Michael. What began as a journey filled with uncertainty—traveling a day and night unsure of their direction—turned into a meaningful experience. Along the way, they handed out many Divine Love flyers and encountered “angels” in the form of kind strangers who helped guide them. At one point, Lisa even felt as though they had been divinely transported back to the border crossing. Her takeaway: don't stress over troubles, for they often lead to unexpected blessings and new connections. She is reminded of the words from 1 Thessalonians 5:16–18: Always be joyful. Never stop praying. Give thanks in every circumstance, for this is the will of God toward you in Christ. —Apostle Paul

Gregory Boster describes a new e-book that he has recently published. Under the pen name of G. Bo. Amin, a fellow traveler, researcher, and storyteller, he offers a fresh presentation of the profound truths of the New Birth — a transformation of the soul through the inflowing of Father's Divine Love. Greg refers to this as the heart of New Birthing. The free e-book can be downloaded here.

Catherine Kent shares her experience of the Divine Love retreat in Inverness, Florida. There were numerous healings of mortals and spirits. Many children spirits attended and were helped by the Celestials. Participants enjoyed Jimbeau's songs and the messages he channeled from Jesus, Luke, Judas, Claire, Yogananda, and Fred Rogers. Divine Love flowed freely and peace and harmony prevailed, as well as gratitude for being able to enjoy the blessings from our Heavenly Father.

Jimbeau Walsh presents a poem, A Window of Time, received from Hafiz.

In community news, Judy Gebhart has continued to publish the Padgett messages grouped according to authors or themes with her latest book titled The Carpenter's Son. Divine Love Sanctuary Foundation is streamlining the distribution of Celestial messages and will no longer be emailing them directly to individuals. Instead, audios are posted in the Messages of Divine Love and Truths group in the WhatsApp, and typed messages in the Divine Love Message Archive at divinelovesanctuary.com, as well as on soultruth.ca. Bill Frase created a podcast with Claire, a twenty-something, non-traditional undergrad, and they speak on a wide range of spiritual subjects. Elizabeth Trask and Bill Frase invite you to participate in their ongoing Soul Manifestation Series. GOODNESS AND MERCY SHALL FOLLOW ME ALL THE DAYS OF MY LIFE (EVA PECK)

The morning after my husband passed away, in a moment of reflection, the Bible phrase, “Goodness and mercy will follow me all the days of my life” came to my mind. Upon finding its source – the first part of the well-known Psalm 23, verse 6 – I saw that the rest of it says: “and I will dwell in the house of the LORD forever.” How true of our future if we continue to grow in God’s Love.

In this article I would like to focus on the first part of that verse. In September 2022, my father passed away at the age of 99 and my inheritance enabled us to move into Renaissance Retirement Village a year later. This was a very clear and powerful leading and turned out providential in view of Alex’s subsequent illness and me being left on my own.

After an enjoyable year here during which we became known and got to know quite a few people, last October, Alex started having noticeable health issues, including water retention and especially lack of energy. He also had previously discovered heart problems. In November, just after his 75th birthday, he ended up going to hospital, and was diagnosed with metastasized prostate cancer.

The diagnosis (including one or two misdiagnoses further along) was devastating and the prognosis disheartening. While Alex progressively lost his mobility and became confined to bed, he had relatively good seven months at home interspersed with nine hospital stays ranging from one day to a week or more. However, he was blessed to have no pain or discomfort, ate and slept well, and remained positive. He had been a very patient patient – which I admired and which made things much easier for me. He remained thankful and almost never complained. These were all wonderful blessings. On April 11, we reached our 49th wedding anniversary, which, while we couldn’t do much by way of celebrating, was a milestone to be grateful for, which back in November, I wasn’t sure that Alex would be around for.

After that, he spent another week in hospital and a month at home, during which he did relatively well. At the end of that month, a turning point came and he deteriorated quickly, especially mentally. It was hard to watch and challenging to deal with. Without knowing how long he may have left, the plan was made for him to go to a palliative room in the nearest hospital. However, he passed away in the ambulance before the paramedics left our place. It worked out very well though, because the paramedics gave me wonderful support, called all the important people, brought him back into the house, and I was able to spend a couple of hours with him at home before the undertakers came. While of course his passing is sad, it was a very good circumstance under which it happened and I am grateful that Alex’s last chapter of his earthly journey came to such a good end.

Along the seven-month journey of Alex’s illness, there were countless small things happening for which we could be grateful. Sure, the journey was challenging, but not overwhelming. I definitely felt being strengthened and enabled to look after him. I had my moments when I “lost it”, but they were relatively few and far between. There was no doubt that the prayers for us were being answered and the whole situation was being tempered by God’s goodness and mercy.

Here are some of my reflections in the form of a prayer that I wrote down after his passing as I was holding his hand. "Thank you, Father, for the timing and the circumstances of Alex's passing—for having the support of the paramedics, Eden and Ross. Thank you for not having to drive and see him in the hospital, for his having gone peacefully with no pain and no discomfort and anything unsightly, such as fluids coming out of his mouth, ears or nose, which can occur in death. Thank you for Whitey, the cat, keeping me company for a while, for being able to sit with Alex for a good couple of hours, for his illness and disability not having lasted too long and yet having had the time to prepare for his passing and have him home and be able to take care of him.

Thank you so much for providing for all our needs, for his having a quick and easy death, for the paramedics having contacted the important people and arranged for everything, for him having died at home.

Thank you for the office ladies, Helen and Jess, coming over to offer support, as well as two of our neighbors visiting later that day. Thank you that I am feeling very well so far.

Thank you for the guidance and inspiration along the way. Thank you for guiding me to stop at the funeral home on Monday, three days before his passing, and for getting things sorted just in the nick of time. May he have a smooth transition and a beautiful welcome in the spirit world and may he make wonderful progress. It is amazing that he died on the same day as his dad 19 years later.

Thank you that he did not suffer, that he remained positive and grateful throughout, rather than depressed or angry, that he never complained, that we had such a beautiful and harmonious relationship, that I was able to tell him that I loved him. Thank you for so many good things. Father I am truly awed how things have worked out.

There were telltale signs that the end was near, like he was hearing beautiful music, saw himself flying, and talked about being on a trip or at the airport. His soul is now free to fly and soar and his spirit body gives him all the mobility that he would want."

When I came to the computer the next morning after posting on the WhatsApp the night before that he had passed, I found a real outpouring of love. I wrote: "I so appreciate your support and prayers. I feel overwhelmed in a positive way! I am feeling your and the angels' love and support. Last night I had the best sleep in a long time, waking up at 5 am and wondering if I was misreading the clock! Thank you so much for your continued prayers."

Even though we didn't make it to our 50th anniversary, I feel privileged to have been his one and only wife. I am grateful for the special bond, closeness, happiness, and harmony we enjoyed for the nearly five decades of married life. When we used to work together, people couldn't understand how we could be together at work and then also at home and not get tired of each other, but we didn't. I am grateful for his love, friendship, dedication, kindness, thoughtfulness, helpfulness, patience, encouragement, spiritual orientation, good discussions, and sharing edifying insights and ideas. I am grateful for the travel we were able to enjoy, for working together most of our career lives and even in our retirement, for his support and understanding, for the projects we worked on, creating lovely books of my dad's art and our own spiritual insights and understanding, lessons that we learned together and separately.

Reflecting on the challenging events of the last few months, as well as the rest of my life to this point, I can only echo David's words in Psalm 23, verse 6: "Surely goodness and mercy will follow me all the days of my life."

Of course, I will miss Alex, but believe that he is in a good place and in time will progress into yet brighter realms. I look forward to seeing him in the not-too-distant future and continue growing together in love and oneness with our Creator.

I would like to end with a special prayer of the apostle Paul recorded in the New Testament book of Ephesians, chapter 3, verses 16-21. "I pray that out of his glorious riches [God] may strengthen you with power through his Spirit in your inner being, so that Christ may dwell in your hearts through faith. And I pray that you, being rooted and established in love, may have power, together with all the saints, to grasp how wide and long and high and deep is the love of Christ, and to know this love that surpasses knowledge – that you may be filled to the measure of all the fullness of God. Now to him who is able to do immeasurably more than all we ask or imagine, according to his power that is at work within us, to him be glory in the church and in Christ Jesus throughout all generations, for ever and ever! Amen.

APPORTATION? GOD WORKS IN MYSTERIOUS WAYS (LISA SIMS)

An apport is a phenomenon where a material object (living or inanimate) appears suddenly and mysteriously, seemingly arriving from an unknown source. The apportioning of human beings is sometimes called transportation.

Something weird happened while my friend Michael and I were driving in Mexico in March, which I still can't explain except by apportionation. We were lost for a day and a night in Mexicali, not being able to find the border crossing back to California because I hadn't set up international roaming and nobody spoke English to direct us. No one sold maps either.

An English-speaking young Chinese man at the Mexican-run Chinese restaurant we ate at was there with a large group of Chinese people. He was the only person in the restaurant who spoke English. He gave me access to the restaurant's wi-fi so I could look up the telephone number of my phone carrier, and let me use his phone to call them, but they were already closed for the day. He and many others there got my messages about asking for the gift of God's Divine Love.

When we began getting apprehensive about how to get back to Calexico, CA from Mexicali the next morning, we saw a highway to Tijuana and knew there was a border crossing there. We thought a side trip would be better than to keep driving aimlessly, so we headed west toward Tijuana, about two hours away.

We were at sea level in Mexicali, then drove over an amazing high mountain range consisting of gigantic boulders at the lower levels. The highest pass was 4,200 feet. My ears popped three separate times going up. We both thought it was the highest we had ever been (and it is on the map West of Mexicali). Coming down from the mountains, we stopped at a small convenience store for a rest break and food. Back on the road, we passed La Rumorosa, as well as the turnoff to Tecate on our right. Michael said, "Tecate is my favorite beer."

While beginning to hunt for the border crossing, this is where it began to get weird because we were in a city, but I saw no signs for Tijuana or anything. Mike was inexplicably saying we had to turn around and go back. I said, "WHAT? What are you talking about? I am not going back over those mountains!" However, I turned around as he asked.

We drove back out of town a short distance to the east and came to a big "Mexicali City Limits" sign (in English). I thought at first there must be two Mexicali border cities (it's a cool name), but there are not. We were back in our original port of entry city (no mountain crossing) and found highway directions to "Linea International" which I realized meant "International Line". (I could have asked anyone for directions if I had known that). We were back in California in only 30 minutes, and in another hour, we were back home at our campsite near Slab City.

Also, we both lost our birth certificates before the trip. Michael couldn't find his and I had mine in my hand and was going to put it in my pants pocket but lost it before we headed out. Michael also lost his driver's license in Mexico so he had no identification. Regardless, we got back into the States without problem and the border guard said, "Good one. Thank you," when I gave him my message. Like Canada, it was supposed to be impossible to re-enter the U.S. without a passport.

Michael told me a few days later that he found his birth certificate, as well as his driver's license! In the next day or two, I also found my birth certificate. If we hadn't had all the confusion getting out of Mexico, we would have given out just a handful of God's Love messages. Instead, we gave out dozens.

I always say, don't stress over trouble. It brings with it many opportunities to meet new people. 1 Thessalonians 5:16-18 "...Always be joyful. Never stop praying. Give thanks in every circumstance, for this is the Will of God toward you in Christ..." Apostle Paul.

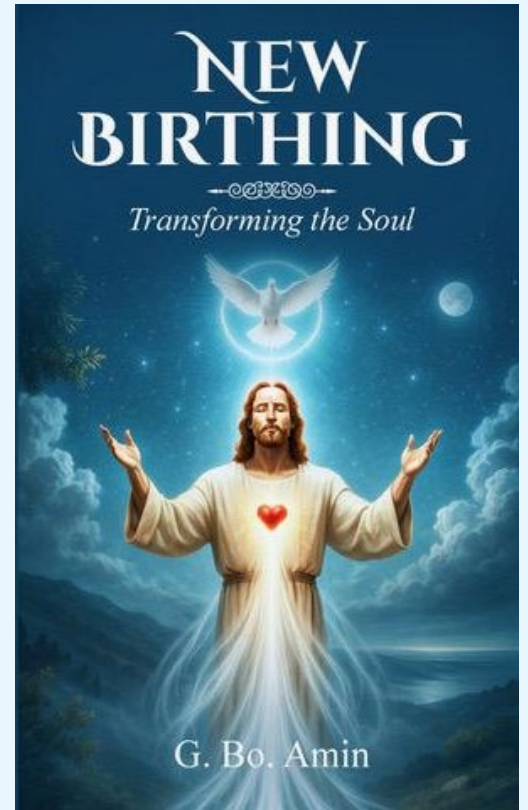

"Pray for the blessing of the Father's Love to come into your soul...Ask for this Gift!" Augustine, 6/21/2024 soultruth.ca.

NEW BIRTHING — SOUL TRANSFORMATION THROUGH DIVINE LOVE (GREGORY BOSTER)

There is a message moving quietly through time — ancient, yet alive — waiting for each soul ready to listen. It comes from the heart of eternity, from the Master of Love himself — Jesus of Nazareth — who once walked the earth speaking truth, and who now speaks again, not in earthly form, but in the language of spirit, love, and revelation.

Over a century ago, beginning in 1914, a humble man named James E. Padgett became the chosen instrument for these messages — writing down words that flowed, not from his own mind, but from the soul of Jesus and the celestial world beyond. These are not new doctrines or religious creeds. They are a living invitation to every human heart — to experience what Jesus called the New Birth — a transformation of the soul through the inflowing of the Father's Divine Love. This is the heart of New Birthing.

In the pages of his new book, Gregory Boster, under the pen name of G. Bo. Amin, a fellow traveler, researcher, and storyteller — offers a fresh telling of these profound truths for our time. Not to add to them, but to shine light upon them. To bring clarity, simplicity, and warmth to the most beautiful promise ever given to humankind: That the Love of God is real... it is waiting... and it can be yours.

This New Birth is not about belonging to a religion. It is not achieved by belief alone. It is the awakening of the soul itself — the transformation of our inner being by receiving the very substance of God's Divine Love through heartfelt prayer.

This, Jesus tells us, is the true Second Coming — not his return in flesh and blood — but his return in Spirit and in Truth, through these loving revelations, guiding us home to the Father. This is the Christ Spirit: alive, active, and available — calling us beyond knowledge into soul experience... beyond fear into love... beyond separation into oneness.

God's great plan for humanity has always been this: Not punishment, but transformation. Not fear, but Love. Not distance, but intimacy. This book is an open door. The journey is personal. The invitation is eternal. Are you ready to begin?

INVERNESS, FLORIDA RETREAT (CATHERINE KENT)

Early in June, eleven dedicated Divine Love seekers met in Inverness, Florida for prayer and fellowship. Everyone was encouraged to share their spiritual gifts, and the gathering was deeply blessed.

Messages from Jesus, Luke, Judas, Claire, Yogananda, Fred Rogers, and others were both widely inspiring and deeply personal. Jesus described the Inverness circle as being like a ship, with him as our Captain, God filling our sails, and our souls carrying the precious cargo of Divine Love to the world. In one message, Jesus mentioned being pursued by his enemies, reminding us that they did not hurt his soul. We then became aware of a large contingent of Native American spirits who were filled with delight in having been similarly preserved, "We LIVE!" they shouted joyously. When Fred Rogers came through, we learned that the spirits of many small children were being led into the arms of Angels, right in the midst of our sacred circle.

Rev. Jimbeau Walsh, who gathered us all together, remarked: "I loved that everyone got to spend time with each person. The messages I have received tell me that where one person is blocked, another is open, and thus we all help each other progress. It was a blessed and holy time and I am grateful to God and the Angels for what we all received and shared. Each person added their unique soul qualities and gifts. What a wonder." Everyone there felt the same! Our harmony was truly special.

A Window of Time

*You have a window and there is a bird just outside
Having a conversation with her friends on the other side of the glass
She cannot see in but senses your presence
You cannot see her clearly but you hear her song
lively and spirited, full of life*

*You have a window
A window of time
In which to make your song
Your conversation
Let it be of love*

*May every note that falls from your heart
Be like a giant hug to the world
Every note played perfectly
In time
With His rhythm
Calling out
For His embrace*

PADGETT MESSAGE EXCERPT

TGRABJ, Vol. 2, p. 352

Paul: What is the real body that is resurrected at the time of the physical death.

I am here, Paul.

Yes, I come tonight to write you upon a subject that may be of interest to you and important to all mankind. ...

Of course there will be but one resurrection and that takes place at the time the mortal becomes an inhabitant of the spirit world. There will never be what is called a general resurrection of the dead, for the mortal can die only once - I mean in a physical sense. In order to live in the spirit realms, it is necessary that he have a spirit body that preserves the identity of his individuality, and having this body (and never having been without it after the soul is incarnated in the earthly body) and not needing an additional body, there is no possibility of another resurrection, or of another body being added to the one that the soul already has.

The body that dies when the man ceases to be a mortal disintegrates into its elements, and never again do these elements form the same body that becomes decayed, and hence it is impossible for that body to be resurrected. The only body that is ever resurrected is the body that encloses the soul of the mortal at the time he gives up the earth life.

I know that many believe that when the man dies, his conscious existence ceases, and he becomes, as it were, dead in body, soul and spirit; that although the physical body decays and returns to dust or ashes, yet the soul and spirit in some mysterious and unexplainable manner, continues to exist as an unthinking sleeping entity, not subject to sensation or activity, and so remains until the great day of judgment or of Christ's coming, when, in response to the summons, it arouses itself, answers the summons, and again becomes clothed in the body which it possessed while in the human form. In their belief, it may not be the exact or identical body which once existed, but the new body will be one of flesh and blood, and of such a nature as to be in substance the same body that was dead and buried and decayed.

But this is not true, for the very laws of nature, with which men are acquainted, prove the impossibility of such an occurrence, and many arguments have been formulated and declared to prove that such a resurrection cannot be - that it will be wholly impossible for the elements that constituted the old body to again assemble in the same form, and give to the soul the body that it discarded when it experienced its freedom from the bonds of the flesh. But the advocates of this untrue theory respond that God is all powerful, and in some way, not understood by men, will resurrect this old body and clothe the soul therein so that the identity of the individual will appear. It must be remembered that God works and produces beings and entities in accordance with laws that he has established, and not by any special, sporadic act, irrespective of, and, as said, in contravention of these laws.

Man understands, to some extent, the workings of these laws in what he calls nature, or the normal, and some spirits understand not only what man understands, but also the workings of these laws that may be called above nature or super-normal, and the laws work the same and without change or interference in the one case as in the other.

As it would be impossible to clothe a mortal having one body of flesh with another body of flesh, so in the spirit world it would be impossible to clothe the spirit who has a spirit body with any additional body, whether of flesh or other substance. This spirit body is a thing of real substance, and not susceptible of being enveloped in any other body. ...

Your brother in Christ,
Paul.
